Only One State Issue To Be on Ohio Ballot

Question of Calling Constitutional Convention Stated as Lone Proposal for Voters and It Seems Doomed To Defeat.

By International News Service
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—There will be only one statewide issue—other than the election of public officials—on the ballots in the coming November election and that one apparently is foredoomed.

It is the question of whether or not a constitutional convention shall be called sometime during the next year to give the laws of the state a "house-cleaning."

Back in 1932, far-sighted legislators amended the Ohio constitution to provide that every 20 years the question of a constitution convention must be placed before the voters. It probably was prompted by the desire of the legislators then to give the voters a chance to express their views on the laws and to prevent the legislature from enacting any wild statutes.

Resistlessly, the issue comes up at the coming balloting. However, the general consensus seems to be that the laws of the state are "all right, so leave them be."

Opposed by Organizations
Not only has the issue failed to gain the support of any statewide organization, but it has gained the opposition of several powerful groups, including:

The Ohio State Grange; the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation; the Ohio Chamber of Commerce; and the Ohio Manufacturers' Association.

Even the Ohio Federation of Labor, regarded in some circles as the "watch dog" of the state's laws, assumed an apathetic attitude toward the proposal.

The gigantic expense involved seemed to be one of the general objections to the issue.

R. C. Atkinson, of the Ohio Institute, pointed to recent constitutional conventions in the states of New York, Illinois and Missouri. All were costly affairs, according to Atkinson, and they accomplished nothing as the voters finally rejected all of the changes proposed by the conventions.

Another objection was raised by T. J. Donnelly, secretary-treasurer of the Federation of Labor. He said that the voters are in no mood to think in anything but the simplest terms and on one question at a time." A constitutional convention, he said, might result in a stampeding of many laws.

Over hours Statement
Chester A. Dyer, spokesman for farm organizations, probably summed the matter up best in a brief statement. He commented:

"Farm organizations are opposed to calling a constitutional convention at this time for three reasons. First, the cost would be about $60,000; secondly, the time is unfortunate; and, thirdly, the constitution can be amended at any time by the legislature or through popular initiative."

Dyer further explained that the farm organizations were opposed to the measure because of fears that a "radical" group might gain control of the convention and wreak havoc with the present laws of the state.

Atkinson, in a further discussion of the constitutional convention proposal, said that "more progress can be made by taking up the proposed changes piecemeal."

He went to considerable lengths to blast reports that a more equitable representation in the legislature warrant," the constable declared. With order restored, the board resigned its session in peace, and a majority of the onlookers tipped from the township house, where the meeting was held, to continue their discussion without interruption and to hear proceedings of the board through an open door.

The township's schools now consist of three one-room schools, since three schools were transferred from the district to Morrow county last year. Three teachers have been hired, but the board members and citizens can't agree on how the teachers shall be assigned.

The assignment of teachers has been a bone of contention at the last several meetings of the board, and has brought a group of citizens to several meetings. Board members have complained that the group of citizens has disturbed them, and last night constable Smith to attend and to keep order.

Disagreement on Assignment

Last year, Miss Viola Obern, daughter of W. P. Obern, member of the board, taught at the Township House school. His other daughter, Miss Irene Obern, taught at Maple Grove school. This year the board employed Howard Ritter as the third teacher.

Obern and A. V. Ruth, president of the board, want Miss Viola Obern to continue to teach at the Township House school this year. C. M. Rengert and H. W. Price other members of the board, favor assigning Ritter to Township House school and assigning Miss Obern to the Klinefelter school, the third in the district.

F. C. Geckley, fifth member of the board, was not present last night, and as a result, his deciding vote could not be polled. The board will hold an adjourned meeting soon, with all members present, to decide the question.

Community Blocked

The entire school district, as well as the board, appears to be divided over the assignment of teachers.

At the last regular meeting of the board, a petition circulated by F. E. Patton and Harvey Kramer was presented, asking that a man teacher be assigned at the Township House school. This petition had 33 signers.

Last night, a remonstrance petition, circulated by Obern, was read, asking that Miss Obern be retained at Township House. It also included the statement that "we do not care what they do in Obern schools," a statement that F. E. Patton, who last year moved to the district from Iberia, and who is a staunch advocate of centralized schools in preference to the one-room schools, openly stated was "out of me."

The district also is having financial troubles. There is more than $2,000 in bills outstanding and less than $300 available to apply on them.

Driver Fined $100.

Ted Longcore of 184 East George street was fined $100 and his driving rights were revoked for six months when he changed his plan in municipal court this morning to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested after his automobile ran over the curb and struck a tree near South Main and Columbia streets. Yesterday he pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Ohio "Whipping Sheriff" Plans To Display Curios in Museum

By International News Service

MILLERSBURG, O., Aug. 16.—John "Peggy" Stevens, Holmes county's "whipping sheriff-detective," widely known for his part in the recent Holmes county kidnapping case, the Meeker murder mystery and the Melvin Herst kidnapping case, is busy these days preparing to share with the public the pleasures he has received from a lifelong hobby.

Through many years Sheriff Stevens has labored and studied and spent to accumulate one of the largest, and at the same time most private, museums in the country. Now he has announced that through the leasing of a building in Millersburg his collection will be displayed free to the public.

In one showcase may be seen, in all their beaded splendor, the mosaics which Stevens says were once the property of Sallie Hall and used by that notorious old woman on state occasions. Close by are a pair of spurs that are claimed to have once been worn on the heels of Buffalo Bill. In another case lies a sword said to have been worn by the nation's warlord-president, General Grant.

At present the sheriff is trying to find space to arrange his collection of old newspapers, valuable books and records. As soon as this has been accomplished he will open his museum to the public.

Ohio Fugitive Caught.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 16.—An 18-year-old on charges of attempted kidnaping has been identified as a convict who escaped from the Ohio penitentiary 13 years ago. Tuttie, who served a year and a half of a one to 20 year sentence for burglary, will be returned to Ohio. He admitted his identity after questioning.

Capitol Deserted.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—Buildings at the state capital sat as if abandoned after a retreat. Employees of the state had their annual outing at F. L. Rice's lake park. And Governor Miller declared a half holiday for all state employees.

PROGRAM ARRANGED FOR GRANGE PICNIC

Prizes To Be Awarded Group Scoring High Points in Contests.

A program of music, readings and recitations combined with a series of sports events in the "Olympic" games will entertain members of the county granges when the members meet for the third annual picnic Thursday at Lincoln park.

The program will follow a picnic dinner served at noon.

Plans for the literary program are in charge of Mrs. Blanche Coon, Harold G. Gibbons and Devil H. Lukins are in charge of the contest events. All grangers of the county are urged to enter contestants in the games in which first, second and third awards will be made. A trophy will be presented to the grange scoring the highest number of points.

He has always expressed complete confidence in Dr. Condon.

After the baby's body was found at which time Col. Lindbergh was on a boat following a clue given him by Curtis, the Norfolk shipbuilder, was arrested and charged with obstructing justice.

At a trial at which Col. Lindbergh was one of the principal witnesses, Curtis was convicted. He was sentenced to serve one year in prison and pay a fine of $1,000 and is now at Liberty under bail pending appeal.

On Chesapeake bay the President-shipper spent the night aboard the 100-foot commerce department boat Sequoia. Whether he ate for breakfast some of the "fine mess" of trout and bluefish the White House here said he caught the newspaperman couldn't find out—they were respecting his wishes and keeping their boat far enough away not to bother him.

Nobody had said definitely how long the President would continue his cruise. But White House automobiles were kept in readiness for word through the Sequoia's radio to meet the boat whenever it headed for a dock.

The executive intended to finish his vacation with a week-end at his Virginia mountain camp.

SECOND SON BRINGS JOY TO LINDBERGH

Lindbergh Boy Baby Arrives 5½ Months After Kidnapping of First Born.

Clayton Morrison Sentenced to Workhouse by Court.

Clayton Morrison of Marion was sentenced to a term of six months in the Columbus workhouse by Municipal Judge William R. Martin this morning for failing to support his two minor children.

Morrison protested that for several months he has been unable to find work or obtain money to contribute toward their support. Police Captain Tom Shrock testified he had seen Morrison on a roadside bar party, and Morrison admitted when questioned that he had an automobile.

"Any one who can keep up his end of parties or run an automobile should be able to contribute something toward the support of their children," Judge Martin said.

Morrison last June pleaded not guilty to a charge of failing to support his children, and the case has not been pressed since that time. Failure of Morrison to make any arrangements for their support since then resulted in his arrest today.

The non-support charge was filed against him by Mrs. Claribel Morrison, who charged he had not contributed to the support of the children since last Jan. 1. J. H. Eymon, attorney for the Humane Society, prosecuted the case.

While Lindbergh astounded the world, from the very moment his first baby was kidnapped, by the strength with which she met the tragic situation into which fate threw her so soon after the death of her father, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, who died last year while the Col. Lindberghs were making a flying tour of the Far East.

So far as could be learned, Mrs. Lindbergh continued about her household duties even from the first, making herself of service to all the searchers for her baby who made the Lindbergh home their headquarters.

During all the frenzied months of search for the missing baby and attempts to capture the kidnappers after it was found that the baby was dead, preparations went steadily forward for the arrival of the second child, who was born today.

While the Lindberghs remained at Hopewell, during the long search for their first son, Mrs. Lindbergh made weekly visits to the Morrow home here for consultation with physicians. Since the trial of John H. Curtis, "hooch" interceding in the kidnapping case, she has remained in her mother's home under constant medical supervision.

Plans for Guards Uncertain

When the Lindberghs first built their home at Hopewell in the isolated Souriand Hill region, it was generally supposed they would have their estate guarded against any possible intruders. Col. Lindbergh, however, wished to be on completely neighborly terms with the nearby farmers and tradespeople and for this reason had no guards in his employ.

There was much speculation as to what means he would take to guard against kidnapping of the new baby. No immediate steps in this direction would be necessary, however, as the Morrow home has always been fully guarded since the first Lindbergh baby was born there.

The baby lost through kidnappers was a chubby boy with blue eyes, fair complexion, golden curly hair. He resembled the famous aviator closely. The end of his life came when he was just beginning to toddle, the physician, Mrs. Bonner reported.

Col. Lindbergh, from the moment that his first son was missing, has sought assurance of his grief in constant activity of one sort or another.

After the Curtis trial Col. Lindbergh sought to Unable to show good reasons why he had not abided by the orders of the court in providing for his family, Ralph Kreis, 32, of Cardington, arrested Saturday night on a charge of driving while intoxicated, was ordered taken to the workhouse by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin to work out a sentence of six months in the workhouse given him early in July, on a non-support charge.

"If you have money with which to buy gasoline and oil for your car and liquor for yourself, then you should be able to provide in some way for your family," the court reminded Kreis, in putting into force the sentence given him in July.

President Hoover's Speech.

When a man makes a speech which kills the chalking tongues of his detractors and rouses the enthusiasm of people accustomed to forego display he has done a good job. Herbert Hoover, candidate for reelection to the presidency of the United States, did a good job, by these standards, in his speech adapting his party's formal notification of nomination.

He addressed himself vigorously and squarely to both his friends and enemies. He described his position on every important issue so clearly that none but the most perverse partisan can refuse to understand. Though making an address which has been awaited and speculated on for weeks, he escaped the discredit of an anti-climax. It was the best speech of his career, and one of the best within the memory of any man now living.

On the subject of widest general interest, prohibition, he made a statement that sweeps away all doubt concerning his belief. He believed national prohibition has been a failure. He accepts the opportunity presented all Republicans in the party platform to advocate state control of liquor, with adequate federal safeguards against return of the saloon and interference and invasion among states.

The political significance of this statement is plain. Democrats can not reconcile their united stand for outright repeal of the 18th amendment with their pledge to prevent return of saloons. By choosing to go to the "wet" extreme, they have left themselves in as bad a position as another group of extremists, the radical drys. In this, as in every problem of human existence, the moderate alone stands on safe ground.

Mr. Hoover, realizing the futility of the bone dry cause and the folly of the dripping wet cause, takes the best of each to make himself a sane viewpoint. He does not equivocate. The American people have demanded that he make his position clear and he has answered satisfactorily.

In reviewing the trials of his administration and the efforts that have been made to meet them with as little harm as possible to the people, he presents for the nation's consideration a complete and non-partisan description. His humility admits the community of errors and the existence of preventives. He claims no credit for his administration that he has spared no personal effort or national capacity to the task of recovering from the depression.

The spirit of his remarks on this phase of his term is contained in this sentence: "If it shall appear that, while I have the honor of the presidency, I have contributed the part required from this high office to bringing the republic through this dark night and if in my administration we shall see the break of dawn to a better day, I shall have done my part in the world."

To those who neither heard nor read the President's words peace is meaningless. It may even be a spur to suspicion. To those familiar with them, on the other hand, peace is superficial. Be they Republicans, Democrats or members of the various splintered groups, they will recognize unusual merit.

Regardless of their individual beliefs on the many subjects covered, they will give admiration to the man who, during four trying years in the presidency, has enlarged his mind to deal the best he could with every subject of importance to the republic.

There will be adequate discussion of separate points in the address during the campaign; Republicans may count themselves fortunate in having such a masterly presentation of issues to guide them.

As a direct and immediate result of Mr. Hoover's acceptance speech he has won back many Republicans who have been blaming him for their troubles.

So eminently fair were his pronouncements and his views of the entire situation that a needed impulsion for straight thinking was provided. The net effect has been to elevate the standard of the presidential campaign. With nothing but the instruments of sound reasoning, relentless effort, and utter sincerity Mr. Hoover has gone far toward re-establishing the high position of confidence he held under very different conditions, in 1928. He has emerged from the severest test imposed on any president with a record that can be presented without shame.

The Home Loan System.

Due, in large part, to the name they will bear, the primary function of the home loan banks to be established in different sections of the country is being misunderstood. They will deal with existing lenders. New construction, naturally, will be stimulated thereby, but it is not the immediate goal of the project.

The home loan banks, principal links in a system that will embrace insurance companies, banks and other agencies eligible for membership, represent an attempt to build solidly from the bottom up, instead of an attempt to sponge a stimulus from the top down.

It was argued in congress that making credit available to home builders, by stimulating construction, would ease the pressure of existing independents. This approach to the problem would have resulted in creating an additional body of outstanding credit which, in the event that the stimulus to construction proved inadequate, would have posed a new problem.

It has been estimated that mortgages valued at $25,000,000,000 are outstanding on residential property. The necessity of keeping these assets reduced to a minimum has made reserves imperative, in many cases, even in circumstances that would have delighted the mortgage holder in better days. This process is responsible for one of the most distressing products of the depression—the foreclosure victim, who frequently loses everything but his skin.

He is not interested in building a new house. He would have liked to lift the mortgage off the one he had, however, and it is the purpose of the home loan bank system to help him keep his equity by relieving pressure on the institution which sacrifices him to save itself. The first effect of the system, when it goes into operation, will be to give urban home owners the benefit of a credit machine similar to that one established for farmers in the federal land bank system. A secondary effect may be to encourage new construction, but that will come later if it comes at all.

Michigan Thinks It Over.

One wonders where believers in capital punishment find evidence to support their case. Are they convinced, for instance, that there are fewer cases of first degree murder in the state of Ohio because this state happens to punish offenders by death?

Michigan, whose voters turned down a proposal to bring capital punishment and its troubles to their courts, in a recent election, is alrigh again by the problem. This time it is a proposal to relieve the governor of his power of clemency over first degree murderers. The maximum sentence they can be given in Michigan is life imprisonment.

The Wolverine state, it would seem, has an opportunity to equip itself with a model code relative to this disturbing question of social policy. It is already free from the stigma of taking a life for a life. It leaves the trouble of getting a jury conviction in first degree murder cases to states which enumber their courts with a harsh provision which jurors are reluctant to exercise.

There is much to be said for the sentence of life imprisonment, but it is difficult to defend the unrestricted use of executive clemency to release a murderer from his punishment. From this distance it seems that attempts by the die-hards to close this avenue of escape are well founded. There is but one argument in favor of capital punishment: the fear of it that may deter a potential murderer from his crime. It fear he a factor in the prevention of crimes of murder, then life imprisonment in Michigan should not be weakened as a threat of social justice by the possibility of an executive pardon.

He addressed himself vigorously and squarely to both his friends and enemies. He described his position on every important issue so clearly that none
but the most perverse partisan can refuse to understand. Though making an address which has been awaited and speculated on for weeks, he escaped the

His humility admits the community of errors and the existence of preventives. He claims no credit for his administration that he has spared no personal effort or national capacity to the task of recovering from the depression.

The man who sat in the presence of Governor Roosevelt and tried to explain why he should not be removed from office was not quite so polished and debonair as Jimmy Walker is expected to be. His ordinarily ready tongue faltered. His half was mussed. Irish wit was subordinate to Irish temper.
If he consciously was making a play for public opinion,
it was a play for sympathy—not for chuckles
and admiration.

There is every reason to believe that the crisis is near; Hitler either will be stopped or he will force the hand he has set for himself. whatever the ultimate outcome may be, it will be better than the present uncertainty.

Walker at Albany.

The mayor of New York who told his story to Governor Roosevelt at Albany last week was a far different man from the one who, as a high liver, flaunted or reality and wise-cracker, has captivated national fancy. If not admiration for his moral purposes as a politician. It would not take many weeks of the Albany-type Walker to destroy the illusion that here is a man who does about as he pleases and gets away with it.

The man who sat in the presence of Governor Roosevelt and tried to explain why he should not be removed from office was not quite so polished and debonair as Jimmy Walker is expected to be. His ordinarily ready tongue faltered. His half was mussed. Irish wit was subordinate to Irish temper.
If he consciously was making a play for public opinion,
it was a play for sympathy—not for chuckles
and admiration.

Walker's chameleon-like change was in contrast to the steady role played by the man who was hearing his case. Governor Roosevelt, who knows better than any one else the gravity of his political stake in the Walker case inquiry, went at the task confronting him with a calm and steady hand. He teamed over backward in his patient desire to be fair, yet seemed to know when to stiffen to keep the inquiry from getting unbalanced.

The hearing will be concluded this week, in all probability. It now appears, however, that the governor's decision may be held up indefinitely by legal device. This should be avoided at any cost. Governor Roosevelt is the chief figure in a national political campaign. It would be unfair to him and unfair to those who are interested in him, whether as friends or opponents, to keep him under the cloud of so important a political decision.

COLUMBUS FANS MAY SET MARK

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 16—Even if the Chicago Red Birds don't win the American Association title—and there is little or no telling that they won't—they appear to be a click to set a new attendance record for the league.

Rules of the Association prohibit giving out attendance figures, but with crowds of from 6,000 to 20,000 and covering most of the figures in between, the Cardinal farm organization today was around the 200,000 mark and well on its way to surpassing Milwaukee's unofficial record of more than 250,000 for one season.

Last night around 70,000 Red Bird fans turned out to watch big Bill Parmalee, with some help from Nick Cullip and Burgess Whitehead, with his eighth straight game since he rejoined the club. Milwaukee was the victim and the score was 2 to 1. Cullip's pitch double in the last of the ninth accounted for the winning run. Parmalee gave five hits and fanned 10 batters, while America Poll and Fred Riley gave only four hits and shut down five between them.

Another youngster crept up on a league record in the Toledo-Kansas City game. The Blues won 11 to 7 but Bill Hulkerboer, the Mud Hen's skipper, rapped out two dingers to bring his season total to 54, only nine behind Earl Smith's all-time association standard.

Louisville hopped on Les Munro for six runs in the first inning and finished with a 7 to 4 victory over St. Paul.

The Minneapolis Millers came through with a four-run rally in the eighth inning to win the final game of the series with Indianapolis, 8 to 5.

Epworth Bids for Title; Christian Nine Defeated

LEADERS OF LEAGUE MUST COP REST OF GAMES TO WIN FLAG

First Reformed Defeats United Brethren in Other Game on Program.

BY KATE R. McELROY
PROJECTOR of a two-way tie for the championship of the second Sunday School recreation league learned stronger today following the victory of the Epworth Reforms over the Christian Brothers.

Completing their schedule, the Epworth Brothers defeated the Christian nine, 4 to 3 after the losers made a desperate rally in the final inning.

The Christians are still out in front one full game but a single defeat in the remaining two games on their schedule will wind the season up in a tie.

Amick, hurling for the Christians, was touched for seven hits while M. Whiteman, the Epworth Mountaineer allowed five base bounces.

The Epworth nine scored one run in the second and two in the fourth. Christian rallied in the fifth frame after being held scoreless in the first six. After tying the score at 3 all, the Christians were stopped. Epworth then slipped across the winning tally.

In the other contest last night the United Brethren nine lost to the First Reformed 6 to 2 with Schwaderer doing the winning pitching.

Stagg, Grand Old Man of Gridiron, 70 Today; Looks Forward to Greatest Team

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Alonzo Alonso Stagg, dean of America's football coaches, celebrates his seventieth birthday anniversary today, hale, hearty and happy—the most ennobling figure in the game.

The grand old man of the midway, now working at a movie lot in Los Angeles as technical adviser to a ghillie thriller, will return to the University of Chicago next week to develop his forty-first Maroon team, which advance reports indicate, may be the thriller of the 1932 Western conference season. This title is due to turn, Stagg believes, after years of defeat.

Despite his 70 years, Stagg's face, tanned and scored by the life that has been rugged and clean, is not wrinkled, nor drawn, nor old. His body is just as tough as when he made "end runs" on Walter Camp's first All-American team back in 1889, pitched Yale to five consecutive baseball championships, lived on bread and milk, and spent his night hours studying for the Presbyterian ministry.

Stagg's daily tennis game is as fast and seriously played as it was 20 years ago. The man who first thought of using the forward pass, the fake pass and the triple pass, looks no older than 50 years. He is
